

What's Really Scary This Year:
UNICEF hurting kids

UNICEF is known to be the world's most respected child aid organization. In reality, this is not so. Because of UNICEF and others, international adoptions from Guatemala were ended, leaving thousands of innocent children a year with no chance for a decent life. UNICEF endorses legislation worldwide that severely restricts a woman's right to choose an adoption plan for her child as well as her right to privacy. Unfortunately, UNICEF offers little advice on how countries like Guatemala should care for the children who would otherwise live secure lives with a loving family.

For more information, please visit
www.guatadopt.com.

What's Really Scary This Year:
UNICEF hurting kids

UNICEF is known to be the world's most respected child aid organization. In reality, this is not so. Because of UNICEF and others, international adoptions from Guatemala were ended, leaving thousands of innocent children a year with no chance for a decent life. UNICEF endorses legislation worldwide that severely restricts a woman's right to choose an adoption plan for her child as well as her right to privacy. Unfortunately, UNICEF offers little advice on how countries like Guatemala should care for the children who would otherwise live secure lives with a loving family.

For more information, please visit
www.guatadopt.com.

What's Really Scary This Year:
UNICEF hurting kids

UNICEF is known to be the world's most respected child aid organization. In reality, this is not so. Because of UNICEF and others, international adoptions from Guatemala were ended, leaving thousands of innocent children a year with no chance for a decent life. UNICEF endorses legislation worldwide that severely restricts a woman's right to choose an adoption plan for her child as well as her right to privacy. Unfortunately, UNICEF offers little advice on how countries like Guatemala should care for the children who would otherwise live secure lives with a loving family.

For more information, please visit
www.guatadopt.com.

What's Really Scary This Year:
UNICEF hurting kids

UNICEF is known to be the world's most respected child aid organization. In reality, this is not so. Because of UNICEF and others, international adoptions from Guatemala were ended, leaving thousands of innocent children a year with no chance for a decent life. UNICEF endorses legislation worldwide that severely restricts a woman's right to choose an adoption plan for her child as well as her right to privacy. Unfortunately, UNICEF offers little advice on how countries like Guatemala should care for the children who would otherwise live secure lives with a loving family.

For more information, please visit
www.guatadopt.com.

